

Our theme, The World Around Us, indicates the importance of the training at The Pennsylvania School for the Deaf in relation to our environment.

Our vocational curriculum is geared to the needs of industry, while the academic program incorporates the requirements necessary for college entrance.

In preparing to enter industry or to go on to higher education, we are constantly reminded that the so called "outside world" is also very much "inside."

Getting along with people in general — our attitudes and the attitudes of others toward us — is one of the most important lessons we have to learn. All our training will be of little value if our attitude toward our fellowman is one of hostility or indifference.

Michael Lynch, Ricky Ballinger, Steven Schuman and William Stahr are about to see "how it's done" at Almo.

Mr. John Levin, standing, and Mr. Howard Jackson of the Civil Service Commission explain the entrance requirements to Ruth Ann Robison, Rachelle Brunzelle and Nancy Benkert.

ADMINISTRATION

The Pennsylvania School for the Deaf is a private, non-profit school operated by a self governing Board of Trustees. The program offers on a five day basis both residential and day school placement. Children living on the 32-acre campus are housed in three of the eleven buildings which make up The Pennsylvania School for the Deaf academic-vocational complex. The Curriculum extends from preschool through high school with both academic and vocational training.

Constant educational and medical reassessment is employed to determine the child's progress. Afternoon and evening clubs and social activities provide a well-rounded school life which helps pupils to mature and gain confidence.

The educational goals of the school are to develop happy, self-supporting citizens who can live and work in the world at large.

Headmaster

Dear Graduating Class of 1972:

This past year will undoubtedly go down in the history of The Pennsylvania School for the Deaf as a time of great change . . . a time when students were asked to participate with teachers and administrators, and a time when parents were involved in the future programming for the deaf. In short, it was a year when we stopped to consider and recognize the special needs of young deaf citizens.

But now, we must look ahead to the outside world you are about to enter. We must begin to realize that deaf citizens cannot remain a minority group in all things. Rather, they must join with the rest of the world in preparing a better place for generations to come.

Philip A. Bellefleur, Ph.D.
 Headmaster

Miss Arlene Jones, Secretary, waits for a final "OK" from Dr. Bellefleur.

Mr. Johnson and his secretary, Mrs. Sandra Zainer, discuss an administrative problem.

The Administrative Assistant is responsible for recruiting and employing the educational staff. He helps teachers with certification from The Commonwealth and directs In-Service Teacher Training. Coordination of educational programs and improving the curriculum are areas in which he assists the Headmaster. During the past year he was in charge of the program to send all of the educational staff to Gallaudet College for training in communication skills.

Development Office

Working with a trustee Committee on Plans and Resources, the Development Office interprets the School to prospective contributors.

Current needs, capital requirements, expansion and improvement of facilities and services — not met by State tuition payments — are funded by Development Office appeals.

This office, established in 1968, is proving invaluable in reaching those who wish to help and understand the hearing handicapped.

DEDICATION . . .

DEDICATION

We proudly dedicate our 1972 MOUNT AIRIAN to four staff members who have a combined total of 152 years of service to the children at the Pennsylvania School for the Deaf.

Their service record is as follows:

Miss Catherine V. Mecke, a teacher in the Lower School, 45 years.

The members of the Board are determined to carry on the fine tradition set by their predecessors in providing the best facilities possible for the education of hearing-impaired children, preparing them for the "outside world."

Child Study

We begin here . . .

When a student first enters PSD from the outside world, whether he be a tiny pre-school tot or an older deafened child, he must pass through the doors of the Child Study Department. Here he undergoes certain tests and is evaluated so that the school can better help him with his particular problem. This evaluation continues throughout his school years at PSD.

The Department functions as an auxiliary service supportive to the educational program at PSD. Evaluations or reports are completed on all pupils enrolled and pre-enrollment evaluations are conducted during the year on prospective pupils.

More comprehensive evaluations and reports are accumulated on pupils with educational problems, or who are potential candidates for a program designed for children with normal speech and language development.

Routine tests, evaluations, home visits, counseling sessions, and the maintenance of auditory equipment aid in improving a child's social, emotional, academic and vocational adjustment, and enhance home and school relationships.

Future plans include the addition of a diagnostic teacher to assist with pre-enrollment evaluations and aid classroom teachers who have children with special needs.

LOWER SCHOOL

Children, four through ten years of age, live and learn in Cresheim Hall. The program emphasizes the development and expansion of all phases of receptive and expressive language, as well as beginning work in subject matter and appropriate thinking and reasoning skills.

Individualized and small group work is stressed in all classrooms. Additional services are provided by the diagnostic teaching team and the speech teacher.

Helping the child in the development of appropriate work habits, attitudes, responsibilities, and social and emotional behavior, is an essential part of the Academic House Counselor's program which serves as a link between school and out-of-school life.

Parent participation through observation and conferences is a must. It is important that parents learn and grow as their children learn and grow.

County Centers

The Chester County Center is located in the Chester County Child Development Center in Coatesville, Pa. The classes are staffed by Mrs. Mary Lee Graves and Mrs. Betty Evans, both long-time employees of PSD. There are thirteen children currently enrolled at the Center, five of whom are integrated into regular public school classes on a half-day basis.

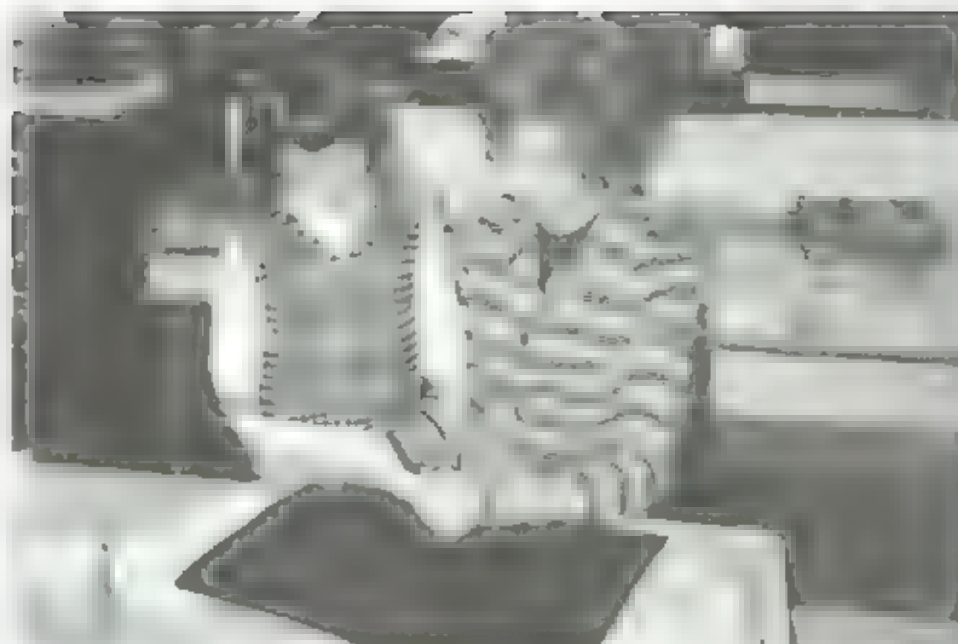

The Delaware County Center has been in existence for seven years. This Center has an enrollment of 34 children and is staffed by six teachers. It is located in the Toby Farms Elementary School, near Brookhaven, Pennsylvania.

Integration of students into regular elementary classes was tried for the first time this year and has thus far proved successful. Seven children, under the supervision of Mrs. Darlene Eshleman, are currently being integrated into first and second grade classes on a part time basis.

The Lancaster County Center is located in the Martin Meylin Junior High School in Lampeter, Pennsylvania. Forty-two children are under the supervision of six teachers.

The York County Center has eighteen children with three teachers. It is located in the Covenant Moravian Church in York, Pennsylvania.

Miss Elvira G. deLeon is coordinator of the York and Lancaster Centers.

MIDDLE SCHOOL

Wingohocking Hall houses the dormitories and classrooms for the children in the Middle School. The children enter the Middle School at about ten years of age and remain until they are about fourteen years old.

The stress on communication skills continues, but now the curriculum expands widely to include other subject matter such as Math, Social Studies and Science. School assemblies are a part of the educational program with pupils participating in the planning of the programs as well as in the presentation of the programs.

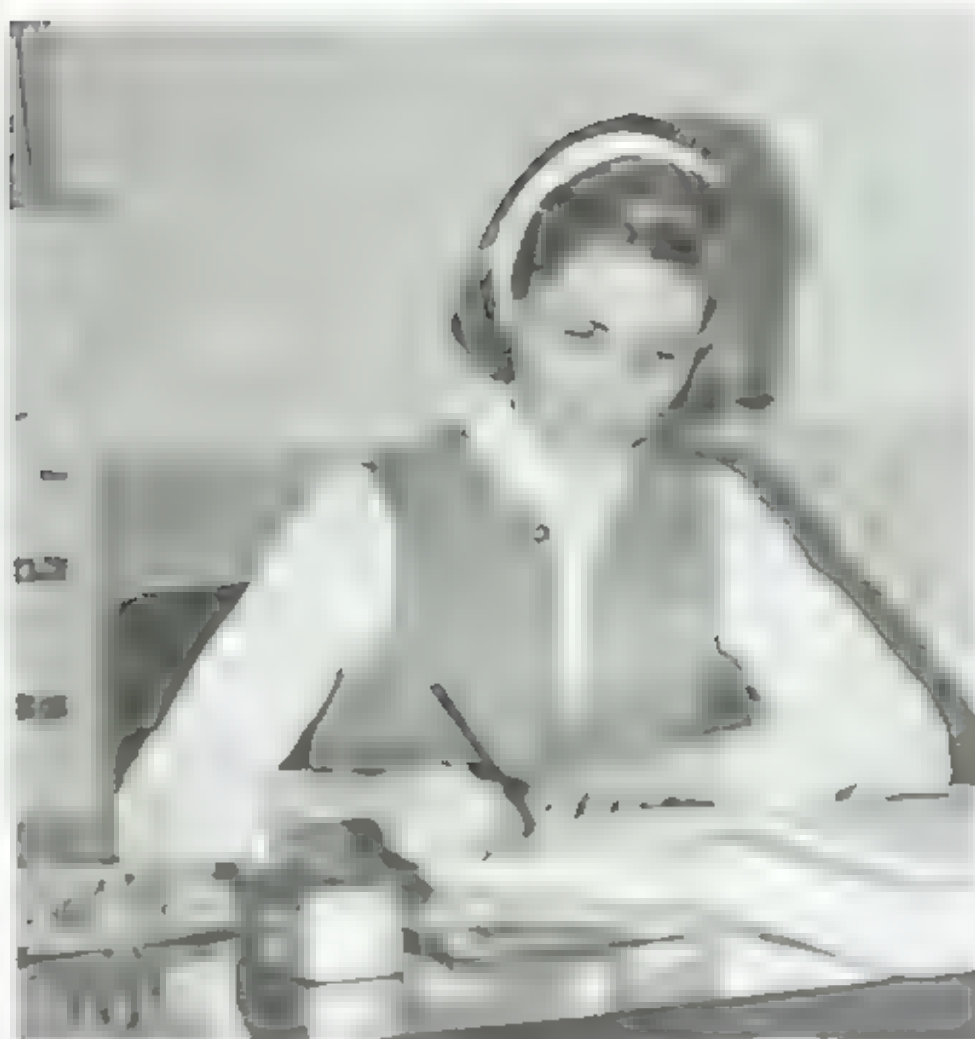

Field trips are very popular events in Middle School and afford the children an opportunity to observe and to explore what they have been learning in class.

Out-of-school activities include socials, clubs, crafts and competitive sports. Every endeavor is made to create a well-rounded program for the children throughout their years in Middle School.

Upper School students generally spend four to six years in Wissinoming Hall, participating in a flexible sequence of activities and studies which lead to graduation from either a college preparatory or a vocational-academic program. Consideration of the aspirations, needs and potentialities of each student determines the course of study which he will follow.

Crash Programs I and II provide for students who show some potential for college work, but wish to pursue a full-time vocational program.

Contained classes have been established for pupils who need special help in the language arts. English and reading skills are developed through language-related art projects.

The Library

From the World Around Us have come many books and instructional aids to serve the needs of the school population. The library boasts of a collection of some 13,000 books and other instructional aids.

Its staff gives guidance and assistance to all library "users" (students, staff and public) who avail themselves of the books, study prints, periodicals, pamphlets, pictures, maps and contents of the vertical file.

Instruction in use of the library and guidance in selection of library materials are among the services offered. Professional books and periodicals, often difficult to locate in other libraries, are found here and prove to be invaluable to researchers from the staff and the surrounding community.

The library hopes to keep on accumulating and dispensing teaching, learning, pleasure and thought-evoking material, thus continuing to bring the world around us into the world of PSD.

Instructional Materials Center

The Instructional Materials Center continues to expand its supply of specialized teaching materials for teachers and pupils who are faced with special educational problems.

Several hundred new illustrations have been created in the language area which relate to vocabulary and conceptual thinking. A unique reading series has been expanded that helps to provide continuity and organization between our language and reading programs. It also insures graduated degrees of success for the children.

Commercial materials continue to be added to the collection—after consideration of their value when related to the particular problems imposed by deafness. Many of them have no text, allowing the teacher to create language suitable for her particular class.

Out of School

The prime purpose of Out-of-School-Activities is two-fold — recreational and social — but geared to the objective of subtly reinforcing the student with the values he learns from home and in school.

Sports, Drama Club, Scouts, Religious Instruction, Arts and Crafts, Driver Education, Junior N.A.D., all serve to instill a sense of teamwork, self-discipline, legitimate self-expression, and proper attitudes in the student not only towards his peer group in part, but to the greater Whole — SOCIETY.

NEVIL VOCATIONAL SCHOOL

The Nevil Vocational School provides an extensive program for all pupils at PSD in Art, Homemaking, Business Education, Industrial Arts, and Vocational Education.

At the age of twelve or thirteen, all pupils, according to their readiness level of ability, enter the Industrial Education Program and participate in the Industrial Arts or Homemaking Programs for three or four years. Both the Industrial Arts and Homemaking activities are exploratory in nature and continue to be exploratory until the pupils require more specialized training such as is in our College Preparatory or Vocational Programs.

Business Education

The Business Education Department offers a full-time program that is a drastic change from the small typewriting classes once held in Morris Hall a long time ago.

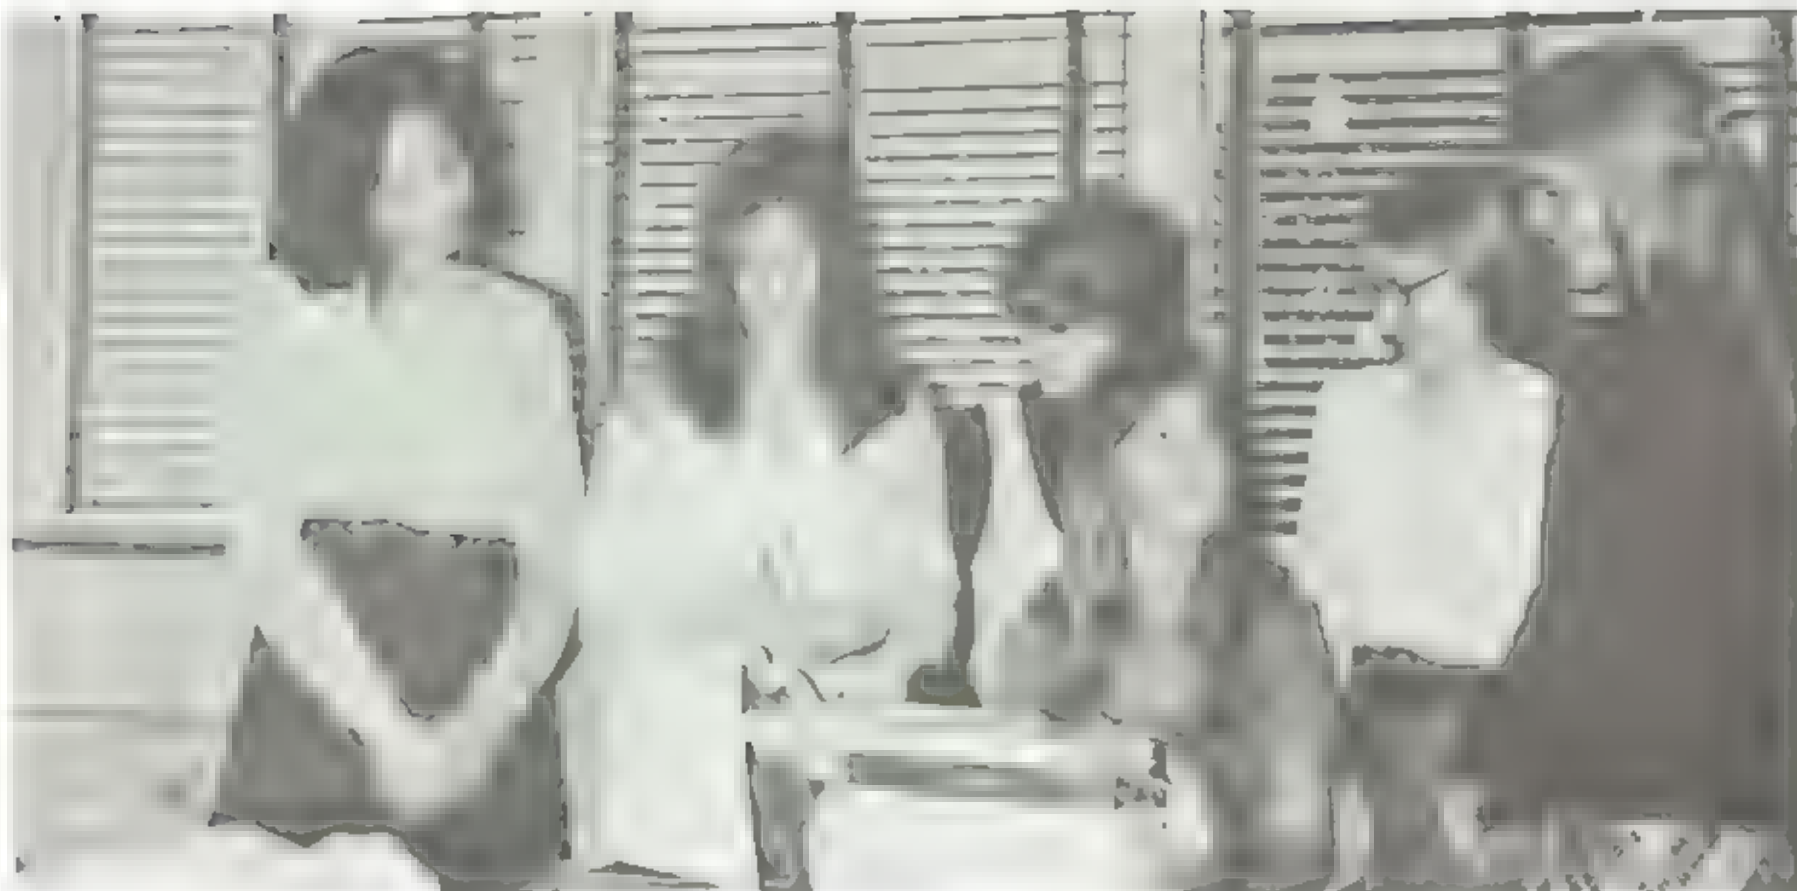

Today, the Department still teaches manual keyboard typing, but has expanded to include the many models of electric typewriters and other office machines: Xerox, Flexowriter, and other duplicating and addressograph equipment, as well as IBM card punch training and data processing. Also, in conjunction with our Graphic Arts Department, courses are offered in the area of Cold Typography - tape perforation, varityping, layout, and paste-up of copy for offset printing.

All around us the world of business is constantly changing to newer and faster methods. Our program is designed to train students in up-to-the-minute skills to enable them to keep in step with modern business.

ATHLETICS

Our instructional program is completed with the addition of Health and Physical Education. They are an indivisible part of the school curriculum. Each year we re-evaluate our program in the best interests of our students. Recently, we have focused our attention and instruction on increasing our interscholastic athletics and team sports program for boys and girls.

Looking into the future, we would desire to have each graduate, as he leaves PSD, carry with him his individual kit of knowledge, skill and interest in such activities as badminton, bowling, golf and tennis. We know that these will help him to better enjoy his leisure time throughout the rest of his life.

Girls' Basketball

Basketball, like other team sports, gives a girl the opportunity to develop a sense of self-awareness. She can see herself under pressure and learns to live not only with the frustration of competition, the disappointment of defeat and the limitations of her own skill, but also with the joys of victory and the pride of achievement. Such values as honesty, integrity, sportsmanship and emotional control are as much desired results as developing skill and winning games. Through basketball we hope to achieve a high level of physical conditioning and the maintenance of good health, but more important to the coaches and school is developing the character of the players which they will carry with them long after they've played on a high school team.

Girls' Softball

The spring sport for girls is Softball, and the school fields both a varsity and a junior varsity team. Approximately 40 girls try out for the teams and from this number two squads are then selected. The teams play a strong schedule during a short season, and much training is required to get ready for the opposition.

Cross Country

Cross Country is a very demanding sport for the individual performer. He must like to run long distances; he must have stamina; he must discipline himself to run . . . run . . . run . . .

Cross Country is a team as well as an individual sport. The runners enter a meet as a team, but each member gains individual points for the whole. During the 1971 season, our team won five and lost ten. They placed sixth in the Penn-Jersey Conference Championship.

Baseball

Baseball plays a vital part in the cocurricular activities at PSD. Considered by many as America's most popular sport, baseball is played by almost every boy and anywhere there is room to hit a ball.

Not only are individual skills important i.e., throwing, catching, running, etc., but teamwork and strategy play an important role in the development of a baseball player.

The player faces the challenge of batting against a pitcher alone. Success is a hit.

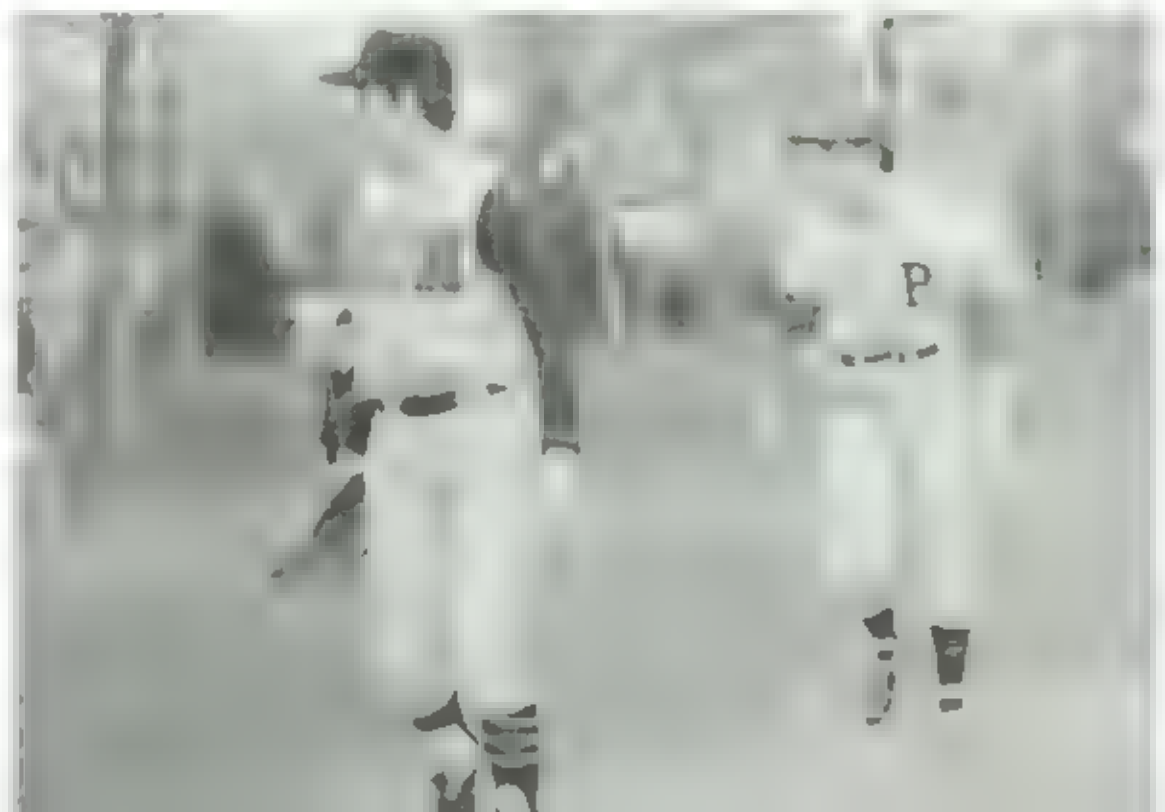

This experience is something that never leaves a boy as he matures through life.

Wrestling

Brains, stamina and speed are the keys to victory in wrestling. It is the one sport where you say, I lost or I won.

Wrestling, the oldest sport in history resembles the days of hand to hand combat, where two boys meet to determine who is superior. Both are of equal weight, and unlike other sports where you have teammates to help out in a clinch, in wrestling you have only yourself.

PSD outscored their opponents 185 to 91 and averaged 23 points per game while only giving their opponents an average of 11 points per game and allowing only one team to score more than two touchdowns.

Basketball

Basketball is a sport that combines running, shooting, hand-eye coordination, agility, balance, quickness and team work. Add height to a player who already possesses all or some of these attributes and that boy will be an excellent player.

The 1971-1972 team had an excellent nucleus in Tri-Captains: Ricky Ballinger, Michael Lynch and Joseph Zollo. Rounding out the first five were James Colston and Michael Hurst. The first five substitutes were Jerry Werner, Jerome Kerchner and Thomas Pacheco.

ORGANIZATIONS

Students' interests are broadened by providing opportunities to participate in a variety of activities after school and evenings.

The Junior National Association of the Deaf provides the opportunity to become members of various committees that participate in school and out-of-school activities.

Clubs such as the Drama Club and the Key Club, as well as an intramural sports program, also afford students an opportunity to expand their interests and to enter into the rewarding activities of their own choosing.

"Something in the Air," an original play, was presented by the Jr. NAD at Christmas Time.

SENIORS

Under the capable leadership of their officers, the Senior Class took part in many activities.

The class trip to Washington, D.C., in May was an event that will always bring fond memories. During the Spring, they also visited the Torredale Home.

Class members took an active role in the production of the 1972 MT. AIRIAN . . . doing the actual typesetting, camera-ready paste-up, photographic work and plate preparation, as well as the offset printing.

In all, the Class of 1972 had a very successful year which culminated in the Prom and the Tree Planting Ceremonies.

The MOUNT AIRIAN Staff is grateful to the Graphic Arts Department, ably headed by Mr. Edward E. Herritt and effectively tutored by Mrs. Ruth P. Davis, Color Typography, Mr. Robert V. Hege, Lithography, Mr. Roy Keeler, Hot Typography, and Mr. Stephen Swavely, Presswork.

This entire publication, including layout, typography, platemaking and presswork could not have been produced without the efficient work of the students enrolled in the Graphic Arts Department.

We of the Staff are equally grateful for the help of our administrators: Dr. Philip A. Bellefleur, Headmaster, Mr. Gerald Johnson, Administrative Assistant, and Mr. John M. Degler, Vocational Principal. Our thanks is extended as well to our entire staff and student body for their cooperation. We also wish to thank the business firms for their advertisements, and our many friends who supported us through their Booster and Patron gifts.
